MEDICINAL.

this period the young woman is especially sensitive, and many nervous troubles, which continue through life, have their origin at this time. If there be pain, headache, and nervous disturbances, or the general health not good, the judicious use of medicine should be employed. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best tonic and nervine at this time. The best bodily condition results from its use. It's a remedy specially indicated for those delicate weaknesses and derangements that afflict womenderangements that afflict women-ent of the Chicago Record, is that of Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt, who lives in one of the Fifth avenue palaces, built by the late commodore for his con-and daughters. Mrs. Vanderbilt is,herself, a fine housekeeper, but it is years since she has done anything in the way of ordering new supplies or directing the management. During the years since she has given up the task of regu-lating her home affairs all has been in the hands of a French lady, Mme. Bol-lie, by name, who is directly responsible for everything in the house and is intrusted with the entire management. Her title is that of directress, and her bast Mrs. Vanderbilt goes to her library and is closeted for half an hour with her directress, and all things are planned for the day. If any servants are to be hired the directress mentions it. Then follows a little talk about the appointments of the table at a coming dinner; and the most Mrs, Vanderbilt does is to suggest that such and such a caterer or suggest that such and such a caterer or such and such a florist will be able to find something leautiful and new. The directress makes a note of the preferences of Mrs. Vanderbilt and sees that the orders are sent out for a certain number of "covers" on a certain night or a certain set of decorations.

When there is a ball planned the direct pass consults the florist passages.

rectress consults the florist personally, and, if necessary, arranges a meeing with him for Mrs. Vanderbilt; and when there are new robes needed for the carriages the head of the stable reports it to the directress, who has a standing order to buy more whenever more are needed. And thus all is man-aged. Each department has its own head, and the head is responsible for must report to the directress, who in turn attends to their wants and on rare occasions consults Mrs. Vanderbilt Sometimes the directress must act a
